DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 2/27/06 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Yoshizawa et al (JP-404362397) as evidenced with Article METADI diamond suspensions.

Yoshizawa et al teach a composition comprises diamond grain cluster of less than 100 angstroms (<10 nm) in average size, reads on the claimed particles diameters in the range of 1-10 nm and the diamond particles are dispersed in water-based aqueous solution (see the abstract).

Yoshizawa et al teach that the roundish diamond grain inherently includes corners as evidenced by the Diamond suspensions article.

In the above, it is the examiner position that the roundish is not completely round.

The intended use of the composition used as a polishing slurry for texturing a surface of a magnetic hard disk is not given patentable weight and even given the patentable weight, Yoshizawa et al's composition is exactly same as the instant invention and the composition is capable of texturing the disk as a polishing slurry.

4. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kendall et al (US 2003/0194961 A1).

The preamble limitation of "polishing slurry for texturing a surface of a magnetic hard disk substrate" is not given patentable weight because a preamble is generally not accorded any patentable weight where it merely recites the purpose of a process or the intended use of a structure, and where the body of the claim does not depend on the preamble for completeness but, instead, the process steps or structural limitations are able to stand alone. See In re Hirao, 535 F.2d 67, 190 USPQ 15 (CCPA 1976) and Kropa v. Robie, 187 F.2d 150, 152, 88 USPQ 478, 481 (CCPA 1951).

Kendall et al teaches the use of abrasive particles of mono or polycrystalline diamond particles having average particles size of .0001-300 micrometer, which meets the claimed range, wherein the abrasives are dispersed in liquid aqueous medium (see paragraphs 0031-0032).

Kendall et al also disclose the abrasive particles may have different shapes including corners (paragraph 0035).

Additionally, the monocrystalline diamond particles inherently include corners.

Kendall et al also teach surfactants may be used in the composition, wherein the surfactant can be non-ionic surfactant (paragraph 0038).

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. JP-08007264 A teaches a slurry for polishing magnetic recording medium, wherein the slurry includes single-crystalline diamond less than 3 micrometer particle diameter (abstract); Komaki et al (5,071,708) disclose diamond grain particles have corners or edges.
